Miami Architect Elected as VP of Large State Association

Tallahassee, FL – Natividad Soto, AIA was recently elected as a vice president of the Florida Association of the American Institute of Architects.

AIA Florida members elected her during the Association's annual meeting as part of the Annual Convention held in Naples (July 28-30).

Soto is president of Ferguson Glasgow Schuster Soto in Coral Gables. She has over 30 years of architecture and interior design experience focusing on public & institutional clients.

An active member since 1984 Soto is a founding leader of AIA Miami Women in Architecture, chairs the AIA Miami Government Affairs Committee, sits on the Elections Committee, Office Search Committee, was 2009 president of AIA Miami and was a panelist on the 2009 and 2010 Bridging the Gap Between Architects and General Contractors program.

“The best ways to serve our profession is through community involvement, advocacy and political participation,” Soto said. “Since public policy so strongly impacts our lives and careers, it is imperative that we each take the initiative to voice our opinions and actively participate in the forming of our future.”
