JLI Leadership Program 2019 - Overview

Overview: In 2018, AIA Florida developed a program to help train and cultivate the next generation of leaders in architecture. The JLI Leadership Program is looking to secure a promising new group of scholars in 2019. The six-month program consists of five in-person sessions and one webinar, attended by a competitively-selected small group of emerging leaders. The program will begin February 4 in Tallahassee with an in-person session during AIA Florida Legislative Day and conclude with a graduation ceremony at the 2019 AIA Florida Convention in July in Orlando. Prospective participants must complete an application process where proven career success, community involvement and the individual's support from a Sponsor (firm, mentor or colleague) will be considered. Upon completion of the program, graduates will be asked to provide input to develop next year's program.

Curriculum: The curriculum focuses on core professional skills, starting with self-assessment and continuing with transformational leadership, motivational leadership, building an organizational culture, influencing stakeholders and other tools that can be applied to personal and professional development on a daily basis.
