

About Leo Marmol

Leo Marmol, FAIA, is the co-founder of the architect-led design/build practice Marmol Radziner, established in 1989 with Ron Radziner, FAIA. Based in Los Angeles, with offices in San Francisco and New York, the firm is known for its design/build approach that includes architecture, construction, landscape architecture, interior design, and fabrication.

Active in his profession, Leo lectures widely on the topics of architecture and restoration and participates in conferences, symposia, and panel discussions. Leo has also organized numerous architectural tours in Southern California to highlight the region's wealth of mid-century Modernist landmarks.

Marmol Radziner's unique business practice and commitment to design excellence were rewarded with the honor of being named the American Institute of Architects California Council's Firm of the Year. Marmol Radziner's residential projects have received numerous AIA California Design Awards, AIA LA Residential Architecture Awards, and American Society of Landscape Architect Awards. Marmol Radziner was inducted into Interior Design Magazine's Hall of Fame, and the firm has been listed on Architectural Digest's AD100 for eleven separate years.

The firm's historic rehabilitation projects have been recognized by the AIA, California Preservation Foundation, the State Office of Historic Preservation, California State Parks, and Docomomo. Marmol Radziner's restoration of Richard Neutra's Kaufmann House received AIA California's Twenty-five Year award. In 2015, Marmol Radziner was recognized as Pioneer in Modern Restoration by the Palm Springs Modern Committee for their projects in the Coachella Valley.
