- Providing overall review and approval, including signing and sealing of construction documents.
- Acting as the Architect of Record for a wide variety of projects within the office
- Mentoring and collaborating with technical and design staff across multiple disciplines

Ideal candidates will have the following Qualifications:

- Bachelor’s degree or higher in Architecture from an accredited university;
- A minimum of Ten years of experience in the architecture & design industry;
- Architectural registration required;
- Thorough knowledge of architectural design, detailing, codes, and building material characteristics;
- Strong Revit Skills.

Why Little:

Little is a place where you’ll surround yourself with colleagues who have different areas of expertise, are from different cultures and generations, and embody different talents, experiences, and passions. In fact, if you ask our employees what keeps them excited about coming to work each day, you’ll hear that it’s the people. It’s also our culture and the chance to be part of creating a better future through our work. We embrace a culture of teaching and learning through cross-mentoring that spans generations, disciplines, talents, and interests and we strive to give each person exposure to the widest possible array of experiences. We care intensely about our clients and each other, and we do our best to spark a spirit of creativity and excitement in everyone around us.

As for our Orlando office, it doesn’t take but a few steps through our doors before you find yourself feeling right at home. There’s an excitement in this office driven by a collaborative and collective work ethic, a passion for community involvement, and a relentless dedication to delivering sustainable and regenerative design solutions...not to mention a culture of celebration and fellowship. Recently renovated and soon-to-be WELL & LEED Certified, this office is located in the heart of downtown Orlando, giving it an atmosphere and energy that’s impossible not to love.
