First District Court of Appeal Has Ruled Against AIA Florida

This week, the First District Court of Appeal heard oral arguments in AIA Florida's appeal challenging Florida Building Commission's (FBC) rule implementing HB 1021. After reviewing AIA Florida's complaint, the court ruled with the state and against AIA Florida's appeal.

Moving forward, AIA Florida plans to continue to work with the many organizations that stood with them throughout the entire appeal process, including taking a united front at Florida Building Commission meetings. The devastation of Hurricane Michael has also exposed the many dangers of not adhering to I-Codes.

Paraphrasing Kim Headland, AIA, 2018 AIA president, even knowing the outcome, this was an important cause on which to take a stand, to protect the health, safety and welfare of people of the state of Florida.
