

Leigh Fogle studied economics, art history, studio art and psychology at Indiana University, Bloomington. In 1994, just a year out of school, she combined those interests and launched Fogle Art Consulting. Leigh quickly grew the business, making it a premier art and framing source for corporate and healthcare clients nationwide. She is passionate about art, community, and technology and uses all three to encourage people to be actively engaged in their environments. Leigh's experience as an entrepreneur, art advisor and project manager has given her the perspective to look for innovative solutions while maximizing financial value and has provided her with an approach that has evolved with advancing technology and emerging mediums.
